

ABSTRACT

To analyze a complex, parallel system a runtime log is generated in XML or converted to XML after generation. This runtime log is examined for properties of the system. Interesting properties are described with XSLT resources. The XSLT resources are used to filter and display the analysis results visually.